Woden Primary School Newsletter

Thank you for your support and understanding at the beginning of the week regarding the flooding of school. Although these incidents are extremely rare, it is heartening to know that our systems and procedures work effectively. If, for whatever reason, you did not receive a text from school, can you please take a moment to speak to the School Office to ensure contact details are up to date.

I hope you have an enjoyable half term break.

News and Information

Google Expeditions

Last week saw Woden host GOOGLE EXPEDITIONS, an initiative allowing children to experience virtual reality. It was lovely to see the children's enthusiasm over significant geographical and historical moments which they would not have experienced normally. We were very fortunate to have Google visit the school, and are one of a handful of primary schools in the Midlands to have been given the opportunity.

World Book Day

Friday 3rd March will see Woden celebrating World Book Day. As we have in the past, we are inviting children to dress up as their favourite book character. A letter will be sent out soon with more details of activities.

Year 1 Trip to Bantock House

Last week Year 1 visited Bantock House as part of their History topic. As always their behaviour was exemplary and members of the public were very complimentary.

E-Safety

In lessons and during assemblies children have been learning about staying safe on the internet. Please take the time to read the reverse of the newsletter, to help support safe use of the web. A useful web site link is:
